Profile

I developed a passion for languages early in life during my time overseas in Australia, where I learned English directly from native speakers, achieving a near-native accent and pronunciation. Currently, I am pursuing a degree in Languages and Translation at Al- Imam Mohammed Ibn Saud Islamic University, specializing in various translation fields, including legal, technical, and medical translations, as well as expertise in Computer-Aided Translation (CAT). My academic journey also includes a year of programming studies at King Saud University, where I gained valuable skills in technology and coding. This combination of linguistic proficiency and technical knowledge has honed my problem-solving skills and adaptability, equipping me for diverse professional challenges.
